

FlamingoRise

REAL TOOLS. BRIGHTER TOMORROWS.

TRACK
YOUR PROGRESS.
SPOT YOUR PATTERNS.
CELEBRATE
YOUR GROWTH.

Client Mood Tracker

WORKBOOK

A simple, practical tracker to help you monitor your mood, identify triggers, recognise patterns and reflect on what supports your emotional wellbeing.

Same
Brilliant You
Just Bolder

TRACK YOUR MOOD

SPOT TRIGGERS & PATTERNS

EXPLORE COPING STRATEGIES

REFLECT ON YOUR PROGRESS

SET WELLBEING GOALS

BUILD A HAPPIER, HEALTHIER YOU

SMALL STEPS.
REAL CHANGE.
A BRIGHTER YOU.

MOOD TRACKER WORKBOOK

Track patterns. Notice what helps. Stop expecting one number to explain your entire bloody day.

The original Mood Tracker was a single table: date, mood from 1-10, triggers, coping strategies and notes. That's a perfectly decent starting point - but mood tracking becomes much more useful when you can see context rather than collecting random numbers like emotional weather statistics.

This workbook helps you track mood alongside energy, stress, sleep, physical factors, events, triggers, support and what you actually did next. The aim is not to become obsessed with monitoring yourself. It is to notice patterns that are useful enough to act on.

Your numbers are personal. A 4 for you does not have to mean the same thing as somebody else's 4. Define your scale once, then use it consistently enough that Future You can make sense of it.

And if tracking every day starts making you more anxious or self-critical? Track less often, simplify it, or stop. The workbook works for you - not the other way around.

Wellbeing note: This is a reflective wellbeing tool, not diagnosis or medical treatment. Persistent or severe changes in mood, or concerns about your safety, deserve appropriate professional or urgent support.

1. BUILD YOUR MOOD SCALE

Before tracking, decide what YOUR numbers mean.

What does 1 feel like for me?

What does 3 feel like?

What does 5 - my middle/neutral-ish point - feel like?

What does 7 feel like?

What does 10 feel like?

Do I need a separate stress or energy score because 'mood' alone misses too much?

REALITY CHECK

The scale is not a judgement. A low number is information, not evidence that you've failed at having a Tuesday.

2. WHAT IS WORTH TRACKING?

Which factors regularly affect me - sleep, pain, illness, hormones, medication, food, workload, conflict, isolation, socialising, movement, weather, something else?

What do I want to learn from tracking?

What would be useful enough to change if I spotted a pattern?

What DON'T I need to track because it will just create more admin?

How often is realistic - daily, a few times a week, weekly?

Keep the tracker lean enough that you'll actually use the bloody thing.

DAILY CHECK-IN 1

Date	_____	Time	_____
Mood (1-10)	_____	Energy (1-10)	_____
Stress (1-10)	_____	Sleep	_____

What am I feeling? Use more than one word if needed.

What happened today that may have affected my mood?

Any trigger, stressor or recurring thought worth noting?

Physical context: sleep, pain, illness, medication, food, hormones, exhaustion or anything else relevant?

What did I do to support myself?

Did it help, do nothing, or make things worse?

One thing I want to remember from today:

No essay required. Useful beats comprehensive.

DAILY CHECK-IN 2

Date	_____	Time	_____
Mood (1-10)	_____	Energy (1-10)	_____
Stress (1-10)	_____	Sleep	_____

What am I feeling? Use more than one word if needed.

What happened today that may have affected my mood?

Any trigger, stressor or recurring thought worth noting?

Physical context: sleep, pain, illness, medication, food, hormones, exhaustion or anything else relevant?

What did I do to support myself?

Did it help, do nothing, or make things worse?

One thing I want to remember from today:

No essay required. Useful beats comprehensive.

DAILY CHECK-IN 3

Date	_____	Time	_____
Mood (1-10)	_____	Energy (1-10)	_____
Stress (1-10)	_____	Sleep	_____

What am I feeling? Use more than one word if needed.

What happened today that may have affected my mood?

Any trigger, stressor or recurring thought worth noting?

Physical context: sleep, pain, illness, medication, food, hormones, exhaustion or anything else relevant?

What did I do to support myself?

Did it help, do nothing, or make things worse?

One thing I want to remember from today:

No essay required. Useful beats comprehensive.

DAILY CHECK-IN 4

Date	_____	Time	_____
Mood (1-10)	_____	Energy (1-10)	_____
Stress (1-10)	_____	Sleep	_____

What am I feeling? Use more than one word if needed.

What happened today that may have affected my mood?

Any trigger, stressor or recurring thought worth noting?

Physical context: sleep, pain, illness, medication, food, hormones, exhaustion or anything else relevant?

What did I do to support myself?

Did it help, do nothing, or make things worse?

One thing I want to remember from today:

No essay required. Useful beats comprehensive.

DAILY CHECK-IN 5

Date	_____	Time	_____
Mood (1-10)	_____	Energy (1-10)	_____
Stress (1-10)	_____	Sleep	_____

What am I feeling? Use more than one word if needed.

What happened today that may have affected my mood?

Any trigger, stressor or recurring thought worth noting?

Physical context: sleep, pain, illness, medication, food, hormones, exhaustion or anything else relevant?

What did I do to support myself?

Did it help, do nothing, or make things worse?

One thing I want to remember from today:

No essay required. Useful beats comprehensive.

DAILY CHECK-IN 6

Date	_____	Time	_____
Mood (1-10)	_____	Energy (1-10)	_____
Stress (1-10)	_____	Sleep	_____

What am I feeling? Use more than one word if needed.

What happened today that may have affected my mood?

Any trigger, stressor or recurring thought worth noting?

Physical context: sleep, pain, illness, medication, food, hormones, exhaustion or anything else relevant?

What did I do to support myself?

Did it help, do nothing, or make things worse?

One thing I want to remember from today:

No essay required. Useful beats comprehensive.

DAILY CHECK-IN 7

Date	_____	Time	_____
Mood (1-10)	_____	Energy (1-10)	_____
Stress (1-10)	_____	Sleep	_____

What am I feeling? Use more than one word if needed.

What happened today that may have affected my mood?

Any trigger, stressor or recurring thought worth noting?

Physical context: sleep, pain, illness, medication, food, hormones, exhaustion or anything else relevant?

What did I do to support myself?

Did it help, do nothing, or make things worse?

One thing I want to remember from today:

No essay required. Useful beats comprehensive.

DAILY CHECK-IN 8

Date	_____	Time	_____
Mood (1-10)	_____	Energy (1-10)	_____
Stress (1-10)	_____	Sleep	_____

What am I feeling? Use more than one word if needed.

What happened today that may have affected my mood?

Any trigger, stressor or recurring thought worth noting?

Physical context: sleep, pain, illness, medication, food, hormones, exhaustion or anything else relevant?

What did I do to support myself?

Did it help, do nothing, or make things worse?

One thing I want to remember from today:

No essay required. Useful beats comprehensive.

DAILY CHECK-IN 9

Date	_____	Time	_____
Mood (1-10)	_____	Energy (1-10)	_____
Stress (1-10)	_____	Sleep	_____

What am I feeling? Use more than one word if needed.

What happened today that may have affected my mood?

Any trigger, stressor or recurring thought worth noting?

Physical context: sleep, pain, illness, medication, food, hormones, exhaustion or anything else relevant?

What did I do to support myself?

Did it help, do nothing, or make things worse?

One thing I want to remember from today:

No essay required. Useful beats comprehensive.

DAILY CHECK-IN 10

Date	_____	Time	_____
Mood (1-10)	_____	Energy (1-10)	_____
Stress (1-10)	_____	Sleep	_____

What am I feeling? Use more than one word if needed.

What happened today that may have affected my mood?

Any trigger, stressor or recurring thought worth noting?

Physical context: sleep, pain, illness, medication, food, hormones, exhaustion or anything else relevant?

What did I do to support myself?

Did it help, do nothing, or make things worse?

One thing I want to remember from today:

No essay required. Useful beats comprehensive.

DAILY CHECK-IN 11

Date	_____	Time	_____
Mood (1-10)	_____	Energy (1-10)	_____
Stress (1-10)	_____	Sleep	_____

What am I feeling? Use more than one word if needed.

What happened today that may have affected my mood?

Any trigger, stressor or recurring thought worth noting?

Physical context: sleep, pain, illness, medication, food, hormones, exhaustion or anything else relevant?

What did I do to support myself?

Did it help, do nothing, or make things worse?

One thing I want to remember from today:

No essay required. Useful beats comprehensive.

DAILY CHECK-IN 12

Date	_____	Time	_____
Mood (1-10)	_____	Energy (1-10)	_____
Stress (1-10)	_____	Sleep	_____

What am I feeling? Use more than one word if needed.

What happened today that may have affected my mood?

Any trigger, stressor or recurring thought worth noting?

Physical context: sleep, pain, illness, medication, food, hormones, exhaustion or anything else relevant?

What did I do to support myself?

Did it help, do nothing, or make things worse?

One thing I want to remember from today:

No essay required. Useful beats comprehensive.

DAILY CHECK-IN 13

Date	_____	Time	_____
Mood (1-10)	_____	Energy (1-10)	_____
Stress (1-10)	_____	Sleep	_____

What am I feeling? Use more than one word if needed.

What happened today that may have affected my mood?

Any trigger, stressor or recurring thought worth noting?

Physical context: sleep, pain, illness, medication, food, hormones, exhaustion or anything else relevant?

What did I do to support myself?

Did it help, do nothing, or make things worse?

One thing I want to remember from today:

No essay required. Useful beats comprehensive.

DAILY CHECK-IN 14

Date	_____	Time	_____
Mood (1-10)	_____	Energy (1-10)	_____
Stress (1-10)	_____	Sleep	_____

What am I feeling? Use more than one word if needed.

What happened today that may have affected my mood?

Any trigger, stressor or recurring thought worth noting?

Physical context: sleep, pain, illness, medication, food, hormones, exhaustion or anything else relevant?

What did I do to support myself?

Did it help, do nothing, or make things worse?

One thing I want to remember from today:

No essay required. Useful beats comprehensive.

3. WEEK ONE PATTERN REVIEW

What mood range showed up most often?

What seemed to improve my mood or make the day easier?

What repeatedly made things harder?

Did sleep, pain, energy or other physical factors show a pattern?

Which coping strategies genuinely helped?

Which ones mostly delayed the problem?

Is there anything I need to change, ask for, investigate or get support with?

4. WEEK TWO PATTERN REVIEW

What changed compared with week one?

What stayed stubbornly the same?

Which situations or people were associated with noticeable changes?

Did I have any unexpectedly good days? What was different?

Did I have any unexpectedly difficult days? What was going on around them?

What is one pattern I trust enough to act on?

What am I NOT going to over-interpret from only two weeks of data?

5. TRIGGERS VS CONTEXT

What do I call a 'trigger' that may actually be an ordinary stressor, dislike or frustration?

What situations produce a reaction that feels much bigger than the present event?

What current facts matter?

What past association might also be involved?

What practical need, boundary or action could help?

Where would more information be more useful than another hour of analysing myself?

Not every bad mood has a deep psychological meaning. Sometimes you're tired, hungry, in pain or surrounded by dickheads. Context matters. ■

6. WHAT ACTUALLY HELPS?

Things that reliably make me feel a little better:

Things that help me think more clearly:

Things that help physically:

People who help:

Things I THINK help but usually make tomorrow worse:

What I need when I am low:

What I need when I am angry/overloaded:

What I need when I am anxious or wound up:

7. MY 'SHIT DAY' PLAN

Because the worst day is a terrible time to design the plan.

My earliest signs that I am struggling are...

The basics I need to check first are...

One tiny thing I can do without motivation is...

A person I can contact is...

A responsibility I can reduce/postpone is...

A coping tool that usually helps is...

Something I should avoid because it makes things worse is...

If the situation is beyond my normal coping tools, the next support I can seek is...

FINAL REFLECTION

What did tracking teach me that I genuinely didn't know before?

What pattern was most obvious?

What surprised me?

What support strategy deserves to stay?

What am I going to change because of what I noticed?

What am I going to stop obsessively tracking because it isn't useful?

Would another two weeks of tracking give me useful information, or have I got what I needed?

A FINAL FLAMINGORISE NOTE

Your mood is information. It is not your identity and it is not your performance review.

Tracking is useful when it helps you recognise patterns, make decisions, communicate what is happening or spot when you need more support.

It becomes less useful when every wobble turns into a forensic investigation of your entire personality.

Notice. Learn. Adjust. Then get on with living the bloody life you're tracking.

Rise. Heal. Soar.