THE ULTIMATE SAFETY PLAN

A practical plan for the moments when thinking clearly gets harder.

The old version of this workbook called safety a 'sacred space'. This one is more practical. A safety plan is simply information you prepare while you have enough headspace to think - so you are not inventing the bloody thing from scratch when something feels wrong.

This can be useful for lots of situations: feeling emotionally overwhelmed, dealing with conflict, living with or leaving an unsafe person, harassment or stalking, worrying about digital privacy, or simply wanting a clearer plan for who you call and where you go if you need help.

Important: a workbook cannot judge danger for you and it cannot replace specialist support. If you are in immediate danger in the UK, call 999 or 112. If you cannot safely complete parts of this workbook, do not. Your safety matters more than finishing a worksheet.

And one more thing: store this somewhere that is actually safe for YOU. A detailed safety plan can contain names, locations, routines and contact details that you may not want another person to find.

Use what helps. Skip what does not. Update it when your circumstances change.

1. WHAT DOES 'UNSAFE' MEAN FOR ME?

What situations make me feel genuinely unsafe - physically, emotionally or digitally?

What situations make me uncomfortable but are not dangerous? How can I tell the difference?

Are there particular people, places, times or events that increase risk?

What has happened before that I do not want to dismiss or minimise again?

REALITY CHECK

Safety planning works better when it is specific. 'Something feels off' matters - and so do observable behaviours, threats, escalation and patterns.

What action, if any, do I want to take from this section?

2. MY EARLY WARNING SIGNS

What changes do I notice in another person's behaviour when a situation may be escalating?

What changes do I notice in MY body or behaviour when I am becoming overwhelmed or frightened?

What practical warning signs matter - repeated unwanted contact, monitoring, threats, damaged property, financial restriction, showing up unexpectedly, access to accounts or devices?

What would make me move from 'keep an eye on this' to 'I need help now'?

REALITY CHECK

Your plan should not depend on waiting until a situation becomes unbearable.
Earlier action can give you more options.

What action, if any, do I want to take from this section?

3. PEOPLE I CAN ACTUALLY CONTACT

Who are the people I trust to take me seriously?

Who could I call at 2am?

Who could collect me or give me somewhere to stay?

Who could look after children, pets or essential belongings if needed?

Who should NOT be contacted because they might pass information on?

REALITY CHECK

Choose people based on what they reliably do, not merely on who you wish would be helpful.

What action, if any, do I want to take from this section?

4. CODE WORDS & QUICK COMMUNICATION

Do I want a code word or phrase that means 'call me', 'come and get me', or 'call emergency services'?

Who needs to know what the code means?

What exact action should each person take if I use it?

Is text, call, messaging app or another method safest in my circumstances?

REALITY CHECK

A code word is only useful if everybody knows what they are supposed to DO when they receive it.

What action, if any, do I want to take from this section?

5. PLACES, EXITS & PRACTICAL OPTIONS

Where could I go for ten minutes, one night or several days if I needed to leave?

What exits are available from the places where I spend most of my time?

Where are my keys, phone, charger, medication, ID and essential documents usually kept?

If leaving quickly became necessary, what would I genuinely need - and what could be replaced later?

Are there places or routes I should avoid because somebody might expect me to go there?

REALITY CHECK

Do not put yourself at greater risk trying to collect possessions. Things can be replaced. You cannot.

What action, if any, do I want to take from this section?

6. MY QUICK-GRAB LIST

Essential medication or medical supplies:

Phone / charger / power bank:

Keys:

Identification / important documents:

Money / bank cards:

Children's essentials:

Pet essentials:

Anything else that is genuinely difficult to replace:

REALITY CHECK

Keep this realistic. The aim is not to pack for the apocalypse; it is to reduce the number of decisions you would have to make under pressure.

What action, if any, do I want to take from this section?

7. DIGITAL SAFETY CHECK

Which devices or accounts might another person be able to access?

Are any passwords shared, reused or known by somebody I do not trust?

Could location sharing, family accounts, shared calendars, photo metadata, car apps or device-finding features reveal where I am?

Which recovery email addresses or phone numbers are attached to important accounts?

Would changing a password or setting suddenly create risk in my situation? If yes, who could help me plan this safely?

REALITY CHECK

Digital safety is not always as simple as 'change every password'. If somebody is monitoring you, sudden changes can sometimes be noticed. Specialist tech-safety advice can help you make changes more safely.

What action, if any, do I want to take from this section?

8. MONEY & PRACTICAL INDEPENDENCE

If I needed money quickly, what could I access safely?

Do I know where important financial information is kept?

Are there accounts, debts or bills I need a record of?

Is there a safe person or specialist service I could ask for help with housing, benefits, money or legal options?

What one practical thing could I organise now that would give Future Me more choice?

REALITY CHECK

Safety is not only physical. Housing, money, transport, documents and access to communication can all affect your options.

What action, if any, do I want to take from this section?

9. CHILDREN, PETS & OTHER RESPONSIBILITIES

Who could safely help with children or dependants?

What information would they need?

What would I need for pets - carrier, lead, food, medication, vet details?

Is there anything about school, childcare, contact arrangements or routines that needs specialist advice rather than improvising?

What responsibilities might make it harder for me to leave quickly, and how can I plan around them?

REALITY CHECK

You do not have to solve every logistical problem alone. Specialist services can help safety-plan around children, housing and pets.

What action, if any, do I want to take from this section?

10. WHEN I AM EMOTIONALLY OVERWHELMED

What usually tells me I am losing the ability to think clearly?

What helps me get through the next ten minutes without making the situation worse?

Who can help me reality-check what is happening?

What environment helps me think more clearly?

What decisions should I postpone until I am calmer, unless immediate safety requires action?

REALITY CHECK

Regulation is useful because it gives you more access to your judgement. It is not a requirement to be perfectly calm before you are 'allowed' to take danger seriously.

What action, if any, do I want to take from this section?

11. MY EMERGENCY ACTION CARD

If I believe I am in immediate danger, I will...

The first person/service I will contact is...

My safest available place is...

My quickest safe transport option is...

The essential thing I need to remember is...

If I cannot use my usual plan, my backup is...

REALITY CHECK

In an emergency, simple beats beautiful. This page should make sense to you when your brain is running on fumes.

What action, if any, do I want to take from this section?

12. AFTER THE IMMEDIATE MOMENT

Who do I need to tell what happened?

Is there anything I need to record or preserve?

Do I need medical attention, specialist support, police advice, housing help or legal advice?

What needs changing in this plan because of what I have learned?

What would help me feel safer over the next 24 hours?

REALITY CHECK

Safety planning is not a one-and-done exercise. Update the plan when circumstances, risks or available support change.

What action, if any, do I want to take from this section?

UK SUPPORT INFORMATION

Immediate danger: call 999 or 112. This workbook is not an emergency service.

National Domestic Abuse Helpline (Refuge): 0808 2000 247 - free, confidential support, 24 hours a day. This is for women experiencing domestic abuse and concerned friends, family or colleagues.

Men's Advice Line: 0808 801 0327 - specialist support for male survivors of domestic abuse.

Galop: 0800 999 5428 - specialist support for LGBT+ survivors of domestic abuse.

National Stalking Helpline: 0808 802 0300 - specialist stalking support.

These services can help with options and specialist safety planning. Contact details can change, so check the relevant service's official information if you are using this workbook long after publication.

A FINAL FLAMINGORISE NOTE

A safety plan is not a promise that nothing bad will happen. It is a way of giving yourself more options, fewer decisions to make under pressure, and a clearer route to help.

You are allowed to take something seriously before everybody else agrees that it is serious.

You are also allowed to ask for expert help rather than trying to be your own emergency service.

Keep the plan somewhere safe. Tell the right people what they need to know. Change it when reality changes.

Rise. Heal. Soar.

Publishing note: This is a general reflective and planning resource, not personalised risk assessment, legal advice, medical advice or a substitute for specialist domestic-abuse, stalking, safeguarding or emergency services.
